HER REMARKABLE CASE.

Every Possible Effort Made to Avert Extreme Penalty.

WINDSOR, Vt., Dec. 8.—The crime for which Mrs. Mary Mabel Rogers was sentenced to death was the murder of her husband, Marcus Rogers, at Bennington. August 18, 1962. At the time the crime was committed Mrs. Rogers was only 19 years old. She had been separated from her husband for some time and was desirous of marrying a young man named Maurice Knapp.

Two Others Present.

Two Others Present.

On the day of the murder Marcus Rogers went to Bennington to visit his wife, and that night she arranged to meet him in the woods near the Walloomsac river. While caressing him she induced him to allow her to bind his hands, and while he was powerless she chloroformed him. In this she was aided by Leon Perham, a half witted boy, who was the son of the woman with whom she boarded. Another woman, Estella Bates, was present.

Rolled Body in River.

After chloroforming Rogers, Penham and Mrs. Rogers rolled the body into the river, where it was found next day. In order to divert suspicion, the woman wrote a note to which she signed her husband's name, giving the impression that he had committed suicide.

Tried to Collect Insurance.

Immediately after the murder Mrs. Rogers endeavored to collect her hus-band's life insurance, amounting to $500. and also made arrangements to purchase furniture for the house where she exected to live when she had married

Sentenced to Death.

A few days after the murder Mrs. Rogers, Perham and the Bates woman were arrested. Perham made a complete confession, and both he and Mrs. Rogers were found guilty of murder in the first degree. Perham was sentenced to imprisonment for life, while the sentence in Mrs. Rogers's case was death on the gallows.

Try for Commutation.

Under the Vermont law the power of commutation of sentence rests with the Legislature, and the law also provides that when a person is sentenced to death a session of the Legislature may be held between the time of sentence and the date set for the execution. At the last session of the Legislature various attempts were made to commute Mrs. Rogers's sentence, but all failed. All Attempts Fail.

Then an attempt was made to pass of and an attempt was made to pass a law abolishing capital punishment in Vermont, but that also failed. An attempt to secure a pardon for the woman shared the same fate. A bill was then introduced providing for the appointment of a State committee to examine into the woman's sanity. This bill passed the House unanimously, but was defeated in the State senate. n the State senate.

Reprieve Granted

The date set for the execution was February 3, 1905. On February 2, after Mrs. Rogers had received the last rites of the Roman Catholic church, Gov. Charles J. Bell granted her a reprieve until June 2, in order that the claim of her attorney to newly discovered evidence might be heard before the Vermont Supreme court in an attempt to secure for the woman a new trial.

Supreme Court Acts.

On May 17 last the full bench of the Vermont Supreme court heard the evidence on which the petition for a new trial was based and a little more than a week later denied the petition.

On June 1 a second reprieve by Col. Bell removed the doomed woman from under the shadow of the scaffold. This reprieve was granted in order that the United States Supreme court might pass on the constitutionality and legality of the proceedings governing Mrs. Rogers's sentence.

Goes to Highest Court.

The United States Supreme court was hen petitioned for a writ of error, in then petitioned for a writ of error, in order that the case might go before the highest tribunal, but this was denied. On June 19 habeas corpus proceedings were instituted. Further legal activity on the part of the condemned woman's attorneys resulted in the case being carried before the Supreme court of the United States on appeal from the rulings of the Vermont court. On November 27 last the United States Supreme court refused to stay the sentence of the Vermont court. With the decision of the lighest court in the land, Mrs. Rogers's last hope for life vanished as Gov Bell had announced that he would not interfere with the sentence of the court.

Scandals in Prison.

Certain disclosures regarding scandals in the Vermont State prison at Windsor, where Mrs. Rogers has been confined have, it is claimed, affected public sentiment. According to testimony before the prison investigation committee of the Legislature, one of the convicts at Windsor had access to Mrs. Rogers's cell some time after the first reprieve was granted by Gov. Bell. It was alleged that this was part of a conspiracy on the part of certain prison officials to bring about such a condition as would further postpone the execution.

First in Thirteen Years.

Mrs. Rogers is the first person sentenced to death in Vermont within the past thirteen years who was refused elemency. The last murderer executed in the State was Sylvester Bell, who was hanged in 1892 for wife murder. The last woman to be executed was Mrs. Emeline Keeker, who paid the death penalty at Windsor on March 20, 1882.

MRS. ROGERS'S LAST DAYS.

Prison Officials Give an Account of Death Watch.

WINDSOR, Vt., Dec. 8.-By agreement between Gov. Bell. Sheriff Peck and Superintendent Lovell, the following official account of Mrs. Rogers's last days was given by the prison authorities and Mrs. M. M. Loukes, one of the death watch; Story of Death Watch.

Story of Death Watch.

The death watch began November 23, when Mrs. Begers was placed in solitary confinement. The death watch consisted of Mr. and Mrs. M. H. Loukes of the prison staff, who have passed every hour of the day and night with Mrs. Rogers, except for an occasional brief relief by some other prison official. The room has contained two beds, curtained off from each other, and here Mrs. Rogers and her death watch siept night after night and here, too, on a small table they have eaten regularly together. The windows overlooking the prison yard are painted so that the inmates of the room have absolutely no opportunity to see out of it.

The only visitors in the deathroom since solitary confinement began have been Supering confinement began have been Superingendent Levell, Warden Paimer, Miss S. J. Durkes, the matron, Rev. W. H. Haynes, the prison chaplain; Rev. Father C. C. Delaney and Marquerite, the four-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Loukes. The girl has helped to divert Mrs. Rogers's mind by her childish branks. Mrs. Rogers's mind by her childish pranks. Mrs. Rogers's mind by her childish pranks. Mrs. Rogers slopt well most of the sights after the death watch began and her appetite did not fail her. Last night she did not go to bed without some urging. She retired about II o'clock and slept fairly well until 5 o'clock this morning.

Talked Little of Case.

Mrs. Rogers was in good spirits all the time, considering, of course, what must have been cassing in her mind in anticipation of the awful hour of execution. She conversed with

She read the bible and even committed some passages to memory. She wrote a few letters to relatives and sympathicing sersons. She never lost hope that in some way her life night be spared and even this norming appeared to retain some faint dea that at the last moment something might her to make her.

Knew Nothing of Gallows.

The gallovs was erected yesterday but every precaution was taken to muffle the sounds of the hammer and no intimation whatever that the work was in progress reached Mrs. Rogers's cell. Even the death watch did not know should it. Mrs. Rogers, however, was being made ready. Toward night Matron Durkee told her that it was built.

Yesterday morning the Rev. Pather C. C. Delaney of the Roman Catholic church administrated rommunion to Mrs. Rogers and gave her spiritual consolation. In the afternoon the Rev. William H. Hayes, the prison chaplain, visited her ceil and rend the scriptures and prayed with her. After he went away Mrs. Rogers joined with Mr. and Mrs. Lonkes in singing hymns.

Asked for the Visits.

Bogers maked for the visit of the cier-n and appeared to believe that her sins seen forgiven. She had not confessed her directly and positively nor had she ex-ly desired it. Indeed, she said little it 'ately. She said she did not consider tye to go to the scaffold and make a con-nant that it would not do her any good it what other people had done.

No Oplate Administered.

When she allowed herself to dwell upon the rices of today she appeared to be making very effort to go to her fate bravely and with ramess. The usual talk has been current bout some kind of an opiate being administred to her to deaden her sensibilities, but it unqualifiedly false. Mrs. Rogers did not rink coffee or tea, but contented berself solewith cold water.

Unionists Exert Every Effort to Put Sir Henry in a

CLEVERNESS OF BALFOUR'S MOVE MORE APPARENT

nless the New Premier Has "Seen" Redmond He Has Hard Task.

LONDON, Dec. 9.-The ultimatum ised by the Nationalist convention at Dublin, demanding home rule, has been promptly answered by an announcement which appears in the Spectator this morning. This publication, although a Unionist organ, has throughout strongly op-posed Chamberlainism, and now au-nounces its intention to support the in-coming Government as the only sure means of upholding free trade.

Enlists All Sections. Enlists All Sections.

The Spectator expresses the belief that Sir Edward Grey will be appointed Secretary for Foreign Affairs, and says that it thinks that the foreign policy could not be placed in better hands. If, as is presumed, the Spectator is well informed, this would imply that Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman has succeeded in enlisting all sections of the Liberal party, including the partisans of Lord Rosebery, in the new Government, by giving assurances that no attempt will be made to tamper with the Union and that no pre-election pledges will be given to John Redmond.

Completed His Cabinet.

Completed His Cabinet. Whether or not Mr. Redmond, as Mr. Chamberlain asserts, has accepted the promise of some sort of concession from the Liberals in the nature of a stopping stone to home rule, cannot yet be stated. It appears to be certain, however, that Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman has practically completed his Cabinet and that King Edward will come to London in teadiness to hold a council on Monday next for an exchange of seats between the outgoing and the incoming Secretaries.

Looks Like Compression

Looks Like Compromise.

The indications, therefore, are that Mr Sedmond has acquiesced in some form of compromise so as to avert the danger of the general election resulting in another initial interest in the sense of the general election resulting in another initial in the sense in the se land's hopes again into the distant future. Mr. Chamberlain's speech last night is to be the pattern for all the Unionist election speeches. The Unionists are entering the campaign with the greatest zest and are using to the full Balfour's lead to attack Liberals on the question of maintenance of the Union. Unless, therefore, Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman has secured some concessions from Mr. Rediatord, he will be confronted with one of the most difficult problems ever presented to a British Premier.

Balfour's Tactical Move.

Balfour's Tactical Move.

The eleverness of Mr. Balfour's tactical move in forcing his opponent into a defensive position on the question of the maintenance of the Union is daily becoming more and more apparent.

It is understood that Sir Henry Campbell-Banacrman has finally decided to remain in the House of Commons. The strongest reason, from the point of view of the Liberal party, against the elevation of Sir Henry to the peerage is that the party would thereby be deprived of his services during the campaign, as members of the peerage, by an unwritten law, are not permitted to speak in behalf of candidates for membership in the House of Commons.

The Daily Chronicle this morning another the control of the party was an and the morning another the services during the campaign as the services during the campaign as members of the peerage, by an unwritten law, are not permitted to speak in behalf of camdidates for membership in the House of Commons.

of Commons.

The Daily Chronicle this morning announces that David Lloyd George and John Burns, representatives respectively of the Radical and Labor parties, will be included in the new Government.

Cabinet Predictions. Cabinet Predictions.

The Times this morning says that Sir Edward Grey will probably become Secretary for Foreign Affairs in the Campbell-Bannerman Cabinet, while all the Liberat imperialists, except Lord Rosebery, will hold important offices. The Times believes that Sir Robert Threshie Reid will become Lord High Chancellor; Herbert Henry Asquith, Chancellor of the Exchequer; John Morley, Secretary for India; Lord Eigin, Secretary for the Cotonies; Richard Burden Haltaine, Secretary for War; Herbert Gladstone, Secretary for the Home Department; the Earl of Aberdeen, Viceroy for Ireland, and James Bryce, Chief Secretary for Ireland.

About 300 people attended the function and enjoyed the hospitality of the Fifteenth ward Sunday-school. A programme was given during the early part of the evening and followed by a dance later. The reunion was under the direction of Superintendent Johnson of the ward Sundayschool, and was presided over by A. C. Rest. The decorations in the auditorium and the dance hall were paints, ferns and potted plants. The programme was carried out in a pleasing manner and each number was roundly applauded, and several had to respond to energy. The following was the programme:

AMUSEMENTS "Whon Johnny Comes Marching Home" will given at the Sall Lake Theater this after-on and for the 'ast time this evening.

The sale for "Way Down East," which will be played all next week, is now on at the Salt Lake Theater. The tremendous strides which the burlesque branch of amusement has made in the past five years, the advance from the siap-stick motif, rude horseplay and beefy Amazons to knieldescopic coloring, clean, yet pleasing comedy and graceful showgirls, will be splendfully lifustrated at the Lyric theater commencing at the matines this afternoon and continuing during the coming week, when the Parisian Belles take possession of the stage. This show is a new show, but has stepped straight to the front, and is now classed as an entertainment which has few equals. Constuming music, handsome women, and picture-sque maneuvers, all these details it possesses in as great quantities as the most brilliant extravaganza. It has nothing in dialogue or jokes to oftend the most captious, while the fun throughout its books and specialities is continued and thoroughly enjoyable.

Sundry attacks of "cold feet" prevented the reanagement of the Lyric theater from giving as large an amateur bill last night as had been intended. No less than twenty promising amateurs had registered, but when it came to a show-down chilly pedal extremities prevented all but two from going on. These two were Miss Redman and Ernest Crouch Miss Redman sang "Til Do the Same for You" in a most acceptable manner, and Mr. Crouch did a monologue and song. Miss Redman was awarded the first prize of 85 and Mr. Crouch secured the second prize of 82. The management promises a big bill next Friday night.
